

Almost 1.5 Million Insurance Cancellations Under ObamaCare

Oct 28, 2013 at 10:49 AM

David Hogberg in Government Health Care, Health Insurance, ObamaCare, ObamaCare, ObamaCare Exchanges, Retirement, cancellation notices, health insurance, obamacare exchanges

Unless you've been living in a cave, you are aware that many policyholders are receiving cancellation notices from their insurance companies. Turns out that these policies don't meet ObamaCare requirements.

But how many people have received these notices? Let's do a tally:

-800,000 in New Jersey.

-119,000 from Blue Shield in California.

-160,000 from Kaiser in California.

-300,000 in Florida.

-24,000 in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

-13,000 in central and eastern Pennsylvania.

-76,000 from CareFirst in Washington, D.C., Maryland and Virginia.

That adds up to 1,492,000 cancellations. And that number is low as similar cancellation notices have gone out in Alabama, Georgia, and North Carolina. We also know that Humana has cancelled policies in Maryland. Unfortunately, no numbers are available thus far in those cases.

One analyst thinks that up 16 million people could have their policies cancelled.

Of course, who can forget this promise: