In her first national interview of the 2016 race, Hillary Clinton dismissed the suggestion that the American people have a problem trusting her. She blamed the "barrage of attacks that are largely fomented by and coming from the right." "People should and do trust me," she tells CNN's Brianna Keilar. Tuesday, July 7, 2015.

Why is it such a big deal that she gave an interview. It's only been 3 months since her campaign launched. I'm glad that she went on a listening tour so that she could hear what voters concerns are and what they want her to fight for. #Hillary2016

She is going to be our next President. Men of the past beware, women will continue to grow in leadership & the entire world will benefit from it. But egos of men will be continually triggered until there is nothing they can do to prevent women from fully shining. For those few good men out there who stand by women, good for you. All others will eventually be restrained from their evil control power tripping misogyny and fear of woman's all powerful creative abilities.

NOBODY IN THE UNITED STATES NOR THE WORLD FOR THAT MATTER HAS THE CHARISMA NOR THE POLITICAL SKILLS THAT BILL CLINTON HAS... SO STOP TRYING TO COMPARE HER WITH HIM!!! ONE THING IS FOR SURE, SHE WAS THE STRENGTH BEHIND HIM AND NOW HE WILL BE THE STRONG ARM BEHIND HER!!!!!!
